

FUTURE MIND

The Compendium of Thought

Future Mind – Introduction

This is my greatest work ever. The reason I am able to create such work is because my mind is in the future. This area of discussion and revelation is going to be part of an extraordinary experience with the future. The future can be just down the road, not very far away, in which case you would pick up simple events that would be happening intuitively in your psychic field of knowledge. Or the future can be millions of years ahead of where you are now, in which case your mind may not pick up those events because they will be so foreign to where you are now. Both are the same though, and that means that the mind that can intuit a simple thing like a phone call that is going to happen from a friend in the next ten minutes, is the same mind that can intuit a million years. The only difference is that when you intuit a million years you don't know what it is because it is not a friend on the end of the phone.

The information has to have somewhere for it to land for you to understand what it is. If you read science fiction, if you explore technology, future technology, if you research and learn about the latest scientific discoveries and what is at the forerunner of thought in your current reality, this will help. Knowledge and discovery are all around you and the more knowledge you can bring into your reality the easier it is for you to intuit the million-year future. If your reality is limited to four walls and a simple understanding, your intuition will be accurate but limited because it doesn't have anywhere else to go. If you are a dreamer, a thinker, a person that likes to contemplate, you are likely to receive knowledge from the future.

This section of our compendium is designed to do this on your behalf. It is designed to build networks of knowledge within you so the next time you intuit something from the million-year future, you've got pictures and understandings as to what that is because remember that it is the same as knowing what is going to happen tomorrow in your time. It is the same mind that does that, and because it is the same mind that does that you know now that there is no limitation to what you can intuit of the future. The limitation is merely a lack of knowledge through no fault of your own because how can you know what is happening in a million years when nobody is talking about it? This magnificent compendium is talking about it, all of it. The next few rooms that we move into are going to hold technology, knowledge, discovery, social structures, leadership, and understandings of the future in a million years. It will include planetary changes, shifts in solar systems, the effects of exploding stars in a million years.

The work in this section as you read each part merely requires an open mind and the knowledge that what you are being given are frameworks so that when your great mind starts to intuit things from the future, you can bring them here now because you have more information to put around what you have intuited. By way of example, let's say you knew that tomorrow there is going to be an event in your reality that you would do well to avoid, and what you see in your intuition at that moment is that you swerve out of the way of something, and that something is shown to you to be an object. So, when tomorrow comes you swerve out of the way of that object and in a million years your spacecraft bypassed a moving asteroid that your intuition showed you was eminent.

Part of this work will be to show you how the events that you are intuiting here are in some way correlating with yourself in a million years and everything in between. It is just that the framework is different. We start with a simple analogy and we build it into a magnificent understanding of how the mind of God is richly interwoven into your life wherever you are and if indeed you are now a million years forward of when this was written, the same holds true. You can know that what you are intuiting there is affecting you here. So you read this now in a million years as it is, and you already know that you have read it. You already know the effect of the words when you read it the first time only what you are able to do is download more knowledge to yourself as you read it. So the first time you read it, it is communicating with you directly in a million years. I believe the words would be - you are downloading the future now.

The Compendium of Thought – Future Mind.

This is one of 13 sections please visit www.thecompendiumofthought.com to find out more.

The person who is reading this, now, is you and what you will get out of this information is clearly understood by you everywhere that you are and will enrich your life a million-fold because of this knowledge. When I talk to you about future technology, and you realise that you already have that technology, you will move deeper into the words and place them into a spiral that ensures the pictures, the images, and the direct experience of that technology is delivered to yourself a million years before. Suddenly you will know that you are in all places simultaneously and then it is not a very big leap to imagine what is happening ten million years ahead from your million-year self. This is the mind of God because it does not live in time. To the mind of God, it is all happening now - 1 million years, 10 million years, billions of years.

It is all happening now and observed without reference to time so the observation of it means the God as it sees it does not know nor care for a future or a past. They are just moments, and none are judged as better or greater - they are just moments. Your God, the great mind of God that you are, is observing all those moments with the same unlimited mind and zero judgement. It can see you as an extraordinary being everywhere because it does not observe you dependent on your evolution in time. It does not see you as greater because of your evolution in time, it is only you who do that.

Future Mind - Future Technology

We are going to work specifically with the million-year self and the reality in one million years. The reason to work into that specific time frame is partly because it is close enough and far enough. If we take it too far - ten million years, ten billion years - the effort to make meaning out of those words is almost unintelligible. However, the future technology that you hold in a million years is able to decipher that. Your million-year self, the million-year future technology, one item that exists is a recording device that has the capacity to pick up the information waves ten billion years into the future and interpret them into that now. The reason that that technology exists is because of this very reason that this information is being discussed. The entities in that field that created the technology knew that they wanted more knowledge from the future of technology, but they didn't have enough time to get it to them before events changed.

They developed something that would bring that technology through quicker, even though the reality they were in was nowhere near where it was going to be in ten billion years from then. So, the interpretation device was designed from their minds to take concepts that had no reference in their existing reality, that they could not place anywhere in how their life was, and to code it into pictures of information, packets of information, that were relevant for their time. This meant that they were instantaneously receiving the technology from ten billion years in the future and reintegrating it into the time when they were.

It is an extraordinary piece of technology because therein time collapsed but time existed. These entities were not of the mind to be time travellers, nor did they want to. It was more magnificence for them to create such technology than it was to be the entity who could move through time and go ten billion years in the future and then reappear in its million-year self. The reason for this technology is because it meant all of them could take the knowledge of what is going on in the future, like watching television shows in your time. But what they are watching is real-time life experiences ten million years from where they are, knowing that it is not fantasy or fiction, that it is a viewing platform that collapsed time so that they could see themselves in that future and what was occurring.

When this technology was developed there was a great need for it, and one of the reasons that the technology was developed was because events that were occurring in that million-year time were on the verge of being affected by changes in entire planetary orbits, collisions shall we call them. These collisions were coming so close and the entities in that future were so aware of it that they needed to know, via technology that was nowhere near where they were, how they were going to get out of it. They did not know how to change the orbit of their own planet. They did not know how to make massive huge planets a million times larger than their own in scale to stop from coming close to their planet and bumping it into some orbit where it doesn't have the sun that it required or the light that it required. They did not know enough about moving objects as large as planets to stabilise their solar system and not be subject to nature's effects.

Because they did not know how to do this, they sent a message to them self in that billion years future via their mind to ask for help but the help they couldn't interpret for the reasons explained. One brilliant mind contemplated a solution to this - an interpretation device. It knew that all mind is interconnected, all mind is God, all mind is one, and all mind is now, and that there must be a way to garner the information from as far in the future as required and still have the knowingness of how it affects them now. All it took was contemplation by that entity - patience, will, passion. Eventually it created a device, a technology that decoded future information to the point that it could be received in that now and then it knew how to go about shifting the planetary orbits within the time flow of its reality. It didn't call spacecrafts from ten billion years away to come and assist, it didn't make wormholes, it made a piece of technology that interpreted the future to be relevant in the now.

This technology will bring great relief to the minds who are able to hold a lofty thought but do not know how to interpret that into a technology that they would then be able to apply. It is that the technology will bring the toolkit based on what exists in the current reality to pull everything together and make what is required. This interpretation device is of course alive and well. The reason that this works, is the same reason that the mind of God holds everything in the same observation. The desire for what the technology can do is the same wherever it is. It is just the environment - the tools in that reality that are different. This means you don't have to wait for the future to experience your creations.

Future Mind – Spacecraft

Let's talk about spacecraft from where you are right now. Spacecraft already exist and already existed a million years prior to where you are now. Your decision to remove yourself from space travel is in part through choice and in part through manipulation, but we are not here to talk about that, so let's concentrate on the future technology - space travel. You already know how to travel in a spacecraft, you already know how to navigate a spacecraft, make one, land one, and glide through all space without the propulsion and the clunky materials that your current spacecraft use. It would take no effort to bring your spacecraft to where you are now, once you release the hold on the perception that technology has to occur in increments - caveman to fire, to wheel, to road, to car, to industry, to electricity, to Internet, to mobile. You think about technology in increments and that one has to build on top of the other. When you release that, your spacecraft is already here because it already was here.

You used to be aware of space travel, you were exposed to space travel, you have been in space travel in your past. You have just come to a place where it is written out of the history books and you agree - for a long time. Then you agree to slow incremental technologies almost to the point where you are nearly still a caveman - it's so slow. In the future the spacecraft that we use, there are varying degrees, depending on who we are and how advanced our technology is by nature of what it is that we have determined we wish to create from that technology. If we have technology that can travel through time - spacecraft - we then are already here with you. If you know that in a million years you have a spacecraft that travels through time, why is it so difficult to know that that spacecraft is here with you now? It is obvious. The only thing that stops the spacecraft from being here with you now is your mind in this reality that accepts nobody has a spacecraft, except those that are making them in increments - working out what materials they are made out of, getting space junk from some landed spacecraft that has been here for a hundred years. Then morphing it and making it into their own new great creation, drawing pictures of it, then working out how to affect the morphogenic field so it can take off. It is ridiculous.

If you just accept the clean fact that in a million years you own a spacecraft that travels through time, there is no question as to who is going to turn up and pick you up tomorrow. It only has to get through your mind to reach you, and that is what this is about. If you are contemplating here in this reality the greatness of yourself in a million years and all the magnificent technologies and knowledge you hold, and one of those thoughts is - of course, I have a spacecraft and it moves through wormholes and takes me to distant galaxies, nod your head if this is something you want. Why would you think that it wouldn't come and see you here and visit you where you are?

The spacecraft we are talking about in a million years that you have created travels through time. This is a checkbox list - tick.

The spacecraft you have created in a million years does not burn up in any atmosphere. You would create that, yes - tick.

The spacecraft you have created in a million years hold such a high vibrational frequency that it can appear and disappear instantaneously, yes - tick.

Because of the nature of your consciousness and you know who you are, the spacecraft you have created in a million years does not need weaponry - correct. The spacecraft you have created in a million years is truly elegant and beautiful. It is sleek in design, it is absolutely extraordinary to observe, yes - tick. What size is it - optional? Do you want to have a very large spacecraft that has presence or a very small zippy number? Both... Wonderful!

So, in a million years you accept that you have this technology and this great mind that can make these extraordinary things because life has moved on in increments and of course all that is now known. Is the spacecraft in some way tuned to your DNA? Is the spacecraft in some way a product of your great mind? Yes wonderful. Are we getting a picture of the spacecraft we own in a million years, yes? Is it starting to make a picture in your mind? Is it something you have seen anywhere before? If it was something you had seen before, we need to go back to the drawing board because it would mean it has come from someone else. This is unique to you because you are a million years in the future, and you have created this spacecraft based on your own design and your own mind and everything you know then.

Now, because we are extraordinary creators in the future, not so much now, in a million years we are absolutely amazing at creating technology, we add some components from ten billion years past, future into our million-year spacecraft. I would guess you can't think what that would be, not enough neuronet to do that - yes. Let's just start to make a few pictures based on the interpretation device. In ten billion years your spacecraft looks more like a space suit. In ten billion years you don't even need a spacecraft. In ten billion years wherever you think you are you are, and you have a spacecraft that forms around you. More like a space suit upon your arrival because in ten billion years you have the DNA codes downloaded and recorded of every entity on every plane, on every planet, and you have created a suit based on those codes that you slip into when you arrive. Such is the mind of God.

Which spacecraft would you like to bring here now? The sleek model design that whizzes up into the sky and appears and disappears and moves through wormholes, or the suit? Or you could be very creative and bring yourself both. If you want to see a spacecraft now, stop looking for it in other people's backyards, and in hangers, or area 51, or political discoveries that are hidden, and you bring it to yourself because it is the same mind in the million years and in ten billion years once you take the increments of time away. That beautiful mind in a million years is right here now, and it would joyfully desire for you to have your own experience of your own spacecraft. I would do that for myself.

The only barrier to entry for the spacecraft to reach you is your own mind. It is not the atmosphere, it is not the political situation, it is not the entities that are holding back the technology and not letting the earth evolve, it is not the era that you are born into, it is only the barriers in your own mind. You can build in your back garden your own space portal because you are still here entangled with yourself in a million years because it is the same mind. So, did we discover how to make our spacecraft with the materials that exist at our disposal anywhere in the universe without having to be a technological genius and waiting for someone to provide us with the blueprint design because we think that only the genius can make the spacecraft? You are that genius because you are already flying around in it, you just need to bring it here. And how you made it in a million years is the same as you make it now. All you are doing is bypassing incremental technological moves and becoming future now, not downloading it.

There is one spacecraft I would like to discuss, and this is the one that you pick up occasionally in your night space visions or your intuitive thoughts, just pops in now and again. Remember, I said that the intuition of the events that you have here, is linked to the intuition of the events you have elsewhere, it's just that the frame of reference is different. If you have an intuitive knowing here that time is running out, and you want to make sure that you are safe and survive some events before they catch up with you, and then you slide into an intuitive knowing that you have moved past that and everything is now all right again - better than all right - your spacecraft is likely to house a force field, a powerful wilful focus, that will take it beyond blackhole events that represent imminent destruction, and you will be able to move to the other side of that as the captain of that craft and bring many others with you.

If you feel at any times threatened, or as if you are being hit upon in your reality where you are, it may be that your spacecraft is activating a higher frequency field so that it can disappear and not be caught in the fire. Perhaps it is time to recognise what is going on. And if your spacecraft lands in the great central sun and there are a trillion dancing forms in exalted joy, you may just feel uplifted like you have never been before. To conclude our discussion on your spacecraft, make sure you know what it is doing and what you want it to do, and don't look to any others thinking that they know. You hold the technology to build it because you are already flying it.

Future Mind - Information Technology

In the future we do not read. If we don't read how do we gain information, exchange information, and take in knowledge? When you get together, gather a group of future minds together, for the most part the exchange of information is telepathic. The challenge when these future minds are visiting from other planets, galaxies, is that their frame of reference is different. In a million years the way information is accessed and recorded, is different depending on how that cultural species has determined it would like to do that. There is no one way that information is held. It is not as simple as putting it all into one single enormous database that holds all the information of all the planets all the galaxies and all the peoples and beings. It does not work that way in a million years.

The diversity of thought based on a species genetics, DNA codes, determines how they wish to keep the records of their species intact. Those records will include knowledge of its history, knowledge of future endeavours, events, technologies, social and or political - if it is political – leadership, kingship, queens, rulers, life and death, just as you would imagine information is recorded in your reality. The importance of archiving the information and having the information in a place - non-specific that place is - is so that the records can be accessed by the entities of that particular species, beings. Cross-referencing from different groups for the most part will only occur at certain levels of thought, meaning that there will be travellers that go to other planets, meet other entities for the exchange of information. They move in benevolent circles knowing that this exchange of information is pertinent to harmony in the universe because it goes towards understanding the differences and diversities between beings.

In a million years earth elected to archive its history, its information technology, in tiny microchips that are scattered in many locations outside of the earth. The reason it did this is because it knew that the journey on earth was so unique it had to be accessible by many, and protected in some way because that information, were it to be unencoded now, there would be more lives at threat. So, the earth peoples for a long time did not develop telepathic communication on mass scale due to the sensitivity of the burgeoning consciousness. In some way they knew that their safety depended on this separate mind. In a million years the telepathic field of earth communication is open, and it is possible now to connect with the entire consciousness of humanity in the future based on that telepathic field that is open in a million years. Up until then, if the telepathic field is open for all entities on the earth field, it is too dangerous and too many would be targeted, found, and destroyed because of the untoward forces on the earth for numerous years after.

This is in explanation. Once the telepathic field is opened, memories through time and ancestry are activated. If the telepathic field is opened in ten thousand years and the earth has already moved into a phase where it is safe and in its future glory, the field will unlock the ancestral pathways and the entities who pick up the field - the grandparents, great, great, great, grandparents, of those beings ten thousand years down the line, - it will open up their telepathic field and then it puts them at risk. It seems foolhardy that this would be the case. Information technology through all the galaxies is sensitive and powerful because the information can undo a planet in a moment. When we open the floodgates of information technology, and those travellers exchange knowledge as they reach each planet, we are in an entirely different era of evolution in consciousness. Until then the hidden nature of some information remains paramount across galaxies. All is known in the mind of God, and in some way the separate nature of information based on individual species allows the expansion of that consciousness within a finite set of parameters which builds uniqueness in all reality. If there is too much cross information, the unique way that that species would take its evolution forward, its discoveries and its creations based on the DNA codes, that original template of design would be cross contaminated.

So, there is a future in a future in a future where all information is exchanged freely and creations are based on the conglomerate of all ideas through all realities and all beings and all species, and then we reach an entirely new era of expression as gods. Until then information technology remains, for the most part, isolated to the individual species so that it may grow and evolve within its template of design. The mind of God is ever watching and observing how its beautiful creations in all the realms are birthing forth new ideas within that template. The people on earth were one of the first to be cross contaminated and this is one of the things that makes them extraordinary and unique.

Future Mind - Future Lives

In the future, once you are past this beautiful phase of your existence in a fractious, competitive, cutthroat and tyrannical reality where one is always attempting to step on top of the other in order to be greater, squashing the life out of their fellow beings in an attempt to recognise that they have greatness within them self ... once this phase is finished - which it will be - the golden age of humanity, long-awaited and prophesied, begins to reveal what you always knew - that love is the connective tissue that holds all life form together. Your separation from each other previously held in place by physical boundaries that made you think that you were separate to the other physical beings, the life around you, the reality, the earth, the tree, the plant, the creature, all of those physical separations like walls, fall away in a great expression that shifts knowledge to a level where you still hold the physicalness that separates you from things so that you can experience it, but you are not separate any longer.

You feel love for your fellow beings as if you could walk through them. Life in the future radiates with this great and extraordinary love for yourself and each other. The recognition that life is a perpetual cycle of living or dying, destruction and creation, and that out of ashes comes greatness, is concluded for something else steps in its path. And that 'something else' you have never seen before which is why it is so difficult to comprehend. And that the reliance on the assumptions that life would only continue in reflection of death, and that the humus in the soil and the rotting leaves were always going to be the rich fertile soil for growth.

In amongst this future life you moved so far into your love for self that you knew you were one with everything around you, including your fellow beings. Your future lives richly reflect the composition of human forms that are put together with this love intact so that as they walk on the earth and feel that radiance, the resonance, they are connected with life. As they look at another - your brethren and sisteren, parent or child - they are able to see divine light of love reflected back to them without separation, anymore.

This era has long been prophesied - The Golden Age. Just as gold is the alchemists' tool of great transformation, so too the prophecy will come to bear that life on earth, your future life, will reflect the greatness of such an extraordinary journey through the mud, through the mire, and the transmutation will be complete. Love has long been revered on the earth as a great masterful healer, misconstrued in many places yet always present through every era no matter how dark or forlorn it has been. Love has always been there in humanity and as you release the binds of the physical contrived reality that you have elected to be constrained within, this great essence of love will blossom and connect and grow and grow and grow. This is what we are waiting for and we know that you are there, all of you. The great golden era of humanity on earth. As it is so it is by witness of the divine within. God has its way of making miracles happen. To the future mind and your future lives. There is nowhere else to go. So be that.

Future Mind - Societies and Significance

Across all realities, societies are bound by the decisions of the leaders or the genetics that manifests as leadership in whatever way that may happen. There may be hierarchies in elevation of consciousness, in ability and knowledge, there may be elected beings that are in some way genetically more pure. There may be systems that allow certain leaders to float to the surface and to assist, rather than command others in their pursuit of their own knowledge. All societies that have structure have a structure because it supports the different layers of understanding that develop through the society. Not everyone in every society is an absolute equal in knowledge, ability, skill, frequency. If they were then we wouldn't have the diversity in all realities that we require to build greater awareness and awakening.

As a person or an entity moves up its scale of understanding, they lean towards the leader to show them or to hold them as they go through these phases. This means that those leaders have great responsibility over what may be termed their subjects. In many cultures across galactic societies these systems are in place because they support the varying degrees of awakened or intelligence. There are roles that are delegated or selected for entities to be part of and none of this is a problem in many societies. It becomes a problem when leadership demands its subjects to be without the sovereignty of their own spirit. When this occurs the greatest travesty on any spirit is that it feels coerced or trapped or held by another spirit, another God, in whatever form that God may be.

In elevated societies what happens is although there are hierarchies, just in terms of different types of wisdom and understanding, the leaders or those that are higher in understanding, support the fluidity with which any entity may enter those echelons of thought. They don't put barriers between knowledge of elite understanding and those that are not at that level. What you could envisage this as, is layers. And the top layer is there because that is where the greatest knowledge of that society is held, and any layer can float an entity all the way up through without having to go through hoops and barriers and be as one with those elite. In this type of society, the mind of the entities is so attuned to whomever is floating to the surface that they are welcomed whatever layer they end up on.

If you thought about it as dimensions, and let's say we took it from the fifth dimension to the ninth dimension, we have beings on the ninth dimension who are able to welcome any entity that moves with its consciousness and its frequency freely into the ninth dimension. They don't expect that that entity or any entity has to get stuck on any level and pass tests or hurdles. All they know is that when the frequency of the entity is raised, so too is their knowledge and their wisdom, their greater tuning with the spirit, and it meets their minds at that ninth dimension. This is in many societies the free-flowing movement. Any entity can be on any dimension for as long as it chooses based on how long it would like to learn what it is that is there, but it is the freedom with which they can move that is unique to these evolved societies. So, whilst there are leaders or those that hold higher frequency positions based on their vibration - which in turn brings greater wisdom and knowledge because they have a high frequency to work from - they are the guidance but not the governing factor for any other entity to reach that frequency and dimension.

When we move to lower dimensional frequencies what happens is these powers that hold the leadership are determining that they will not allow others to move up the scale. This is common in many societies. The reason they don't allow others to move up the scale is because they are threatened that once another entity from lower echelons of thinking moves directly to meet those entities at the top level, they are having to question what it is that they know. That entity comes with their unique set of understandings that may not be based on royalty, if that's the case, or profound genetics, if that's the case, or any other semblance that would make the entity move up into the leadership level. In these societies we have division, we have suppression, and we have a sense that the entities stuck in the other levels are suppressed and unable to have the free-flowing movement of their spirit as it determines it would like to be.

The solution, if indeed it is required, is merely to take the mind beyond the structures of the society, whatever it is that is being observed, and look at it in terms of the spirit. How many entities are feeling that their spirit is held back by the system that they are in? If you see a mass of consciousness where this is in place, what you know is that we have a society structure that is disallowing of evolution or life. This is why intervention happens and it happens in many planes because as it is observed by gods, what we see is a dark sludge colour where the spirit is suppressed on a mass scale, and then another layer where it is slightly brighter, then another layer where it is brighter again. We witness that that dark colour has no life in it. The objective of entities that come to intervene in different planes and planets and systems is to lift the dark colour off the plane where it is stuck so that the light of those entities spirit is finally once again able to shine.

Once the lights are turned on, then it is up to the individual entity in whatever system it is founded in to break free of that system in any way it determines is best for its spirit. This is why you get collapsing systems of society that occur in many different ways. There is not one right way for that system to fall apart. It is the individual light that will then chase and bring forth its movement up through the layers. Some may bypass all the systems and not go anywhere near that and just elevate straight to a new dimension where they vibrate in the high frequency and they are nowhere near that system. Others will turn their light on from within the system and move to brightening that whole layer so that that starts to crumble the societal structure that is squashing the reality of others around it. None of it is right or wrong. What is key is to recognise that in any observed planet, entities as they pass by that - we are called the search and rescue crew, let's call us that - what we observe is these layers of society. If we see such suppression of spirits in any structure, we go into that society and we start to build pathways for the spirit of those entities to find their way out and free.

Not always will our work be to take down the layer at the top. In some cases, it will be, in others it won't be because if we take down the layer at the top then when the light turns on from the base it doesn't have anywhere to go. In some societies it is actually better to keep that layer there so that as the lights are bright from below, they actually float up to that layer and build a new societal model because the structures are there in place for them to work within. The variables are multitudinous. What is key is that the search and rescue teams that are moving past these planets are always looking for any societal system that is held and thwarting the evolution on a large scale of the spirit of any individual or mass consciousness of those entities. As much as it would be nice to do a cut and paste replication of a divine societal system over one of these challenged systems, it doesn't work that way - yet. It can work that way if enough of the consciousness in the system raises. It can then remodel itself with a greater societal system that is more along the lines of the ones spoken about with the fifth to the ninth dimension, where there is hierarchy but free flowing movement of spirit all the way through, and support for the divine to come through in every entity wherever it selects or finds itself in that time flow.

Much of the work that comes forth in this Compendium of Thought with regards to extra-terrestrial intelligence, will start to build understandings around the uniqueness of each species which then will be able to link further towards what their societal structures are like. By way of an example, the collective nature of the Pleiadean consciousness as they move through and assist in a group or a cluster, that is a very different societal structure to the make-believe structure of a Utopian society. The reason to make mention of the make-believe structure of a Utopian society is because Utopia as it is envisaged in the realm of the earth plane, is a society that seems to have everyone in cohesive agreement and everything in pure magic in the way it all interlinks. This does not take into consideration the intricacies with which societies in future beings are so carefully constructed to ensure the evolution and development of any entity at whatever level they wish to portray their reality within that society.

As an example, if I woke up tomorrow has a Hathor, I would clearly integrate myself into the society and the normal practices of that species. I wouldn't come into that species presuming to know everything about it until such time as I had explored the consciousness enough to understand the idiosyncrasies and the intricacies of that species. If I arrive there as an incarnated being into that reality, I need to learn - which can occur instantaneously and quickly - how it is that that reality is held together. I rely on the archives and the knowledge and the wisdom of the great ones that are long-term beings holding the DNA codes of the consciousness of the Hathor reality together. If I was born into that society, I would know that the genetic predisposition of the entities that had brought me into that society, would determine the level that I arrived at. By way of another example, when an entity incarnates onto the earth plane, if it incarnates into a poverty-stricken reality, it has elected to experience that level of the society prior to moving to another level.

Future societies are at best open, supportive, able to accept though diversity within the whole, and know that the structure of the society that has been created by them is a network that finely attunes and supports every other entity within that network. And here you can envisage the beauty of the spiderweb and imagine that that web is the network of a finely tuned society where one ripple on that web is felt by everyone and everyone is supported by the whole web. There is no section that is left out. Even though individual understandings are recognised within that web of society, you can traverse any line and move any way you wish for your greater experience as determined by your spirit. This is a symbol of divine mind and society. Your greatest societies are structured on geometric patterns similar to the spiderweb where the shape of the geometry holds beauty and magnificence in all the elements of that geometric structure. All the elements are required to keep it as a whole, and all the elements are just as glamorous and glorious and shining as all the others. There is no one section that is brighter or greater than any other. This is the geometry that oversees extraordinary society and one symbol that would assist in recognising the power of this is the five-pointed pentagram which supports and protects every individual in their sovereignty and on their freedom of expression and abundance of spirit.

Future Mind - Future Architecture

Construction materials alone will be so different in the future that you will be creating architecture and structures that are living entities. The structures that are created are based on geometry and the geometry allows the structures to harmonise with the environment that they are in. Although they are still buildings and architectural structures which are not natural to the environment, they are harmonised with the environment because their geometry sings in harmony with the living creatures - plants if they be plants, and atmosphere - of the planet where it is being developed. This living architecture in the future has been developed out of the materials that are available on that planet at that time.

This can be considered to be similar to what you do already - making things out of clay or wood or stone or marble - however the future mind is making them out of the matter of the environment and not taking down or reshaping the materials that are already there. They are taking the very atomic structure of the matter that is available and reforming it so that it will fit into these architectural structures that are living in harmony with the environment. The reason that they are designed geometrically to work with the environment is because if they took the matter that was in the current field of reality and they made it into something that was not harmonised with the environment, it would be like a transplant organ that gets rejected. Because it is made of the matter in existence on the planet it has got to have the same geometric shape as all the other life forms that are on that planet.

Now, what we are talking about is just a beginning piece of background information. The apex of the pyramid is where we really want to build our awareness of how divine mind, future mind, builds extraordinary structures that are symbolically connected with the geometry of the universe and retain knowledge for the inhabitants. When the pyramids were created, not only were they landing platforms for great beings to launch themselves from, and connect to their remote star homes, what they also had was the innate connection with the divine geometry of the God beings. This geometry is metaphorically very powerful because as the entity approaches the innards of the pyramid, they are naturally inclined to elevate their consciousness through the great pyramid or the great mind to reach its apex.

When we see future architecture from divine minds that have much greater awareness than where the consciousness sits on the earth plane, they have utilised geometry that is over and above what the pyramid shape holds. The apex of the pyramid is merely a point of reference that entities are utilising to symbolise the elevation of spirit to its godhood. What happens with this architecture in the future is it looks and moves differently depending on the level of consciousness of the entities that are present on that plane of existence.

For example, if the entities are vibrating in a very high dimensional field then their architecture will look more like snowflakes - if that's the way you would like to describe it. It will be elegant, and it will be intricate, and it will be interconnected and truly magically beautiful because those minds are able to hold that awareness of that divine shape and recognise that as these structures represent that shape, they are in communion with God via them self. If the entities are in a mid-range dimensional field, the architecture of their mind will be more like your stars or your metatron style symbols because that is their way of communicating and representing the divine God that they are. Now our apex of the pyramid that we are so attuned to in the earth reality, is in place because it represents the point of ascension where the God and the human are at one mind. The very top point of that pyramid is where the ladder has completed itself and the mind is one with the God. If you don't have the pyramid to represent this type of ascension, then the shape of the architecture that is showing itself to these entities on these other planes, is their way of understanding ascension. This means that there is not only the pyramid structure that is descriptive of ascension to entities, there are apex experiences that they are shown which do not look like a pyramid.

The Compendium of Thought – Future Mind.

This is one of 13 sections please visit www.thecompendiumofthought.com to find out more.

If you were on a different plane of existence, and you were in a higher vibrational field to the one you are yet still in - a state below your ascension or your climax of reaching the point where one is God mind - you would have different symbols to attach your meaning to, than the pyramid may seem to be the symbol that is representative of God mind here. The entities in the future know this and of course they then build structures from the matter that exists on the planet, but they build more than one type of structure because they know that on the planet there are more than one type of vibrational field. What starts to happen is you walk across other architectures that stimulate the ascension for the entity according to what level it is walking into.

That is enough, it's clear and what it is stating is - the pyramid and the apex of the pyramid are symbolic representations of the divine ascension of a human to God. It is very important for that symbolism to exist because it is built out of the architecture of the planet and it is geometrically aligned with the planet. Other planets, other dimensions, have different geometries and those geometries are what future divine minds are utilising in their architecture on this planet and on many others. The reason they can use it on this planet in the future is because it is an awakened being and it is interconnected with galactic mind and not independent of that in the future. Your architecture in the future will be infinitely more interesting and extraordinary than what you have been exposed to because the geometry will be foreign. There is so much beauty ahead for the creators and the builders of architecture, of structures, because as they start to bring through these new structures from the galactic mind, they are working with new geometry that will open new pathways they have not previously explored and that are well beyond the well-trod path of ascension from human to God.

Future Mind - Future Intelligence

The intellectual mind in the future is hardwired to retain more knowledge and information than you have previously been exposed to in the retention of it. The way that future intelligence works is that it can move through states of existence fluidly and pick up where it left off without holding memory as you understand memory. The reason it is called future intelligence is because what has happened is you have trained different parts of your brain to be operational in ways that they currently aren't utilised. The way memory is held in the brain currently, is it's put into a storehouse in your brain and then accessed as memory or information. Depending on how much of that information you have stored, will depend on how well you retain it.

In the future the retention of the information is not held in that storehouse and what happens is that the intelligence of the being that you are is able to connect with any point of exposure to information. Here we begin to understand how genius in your reality becomes the norm in the future. Genius is an entity that has the ability to hold numerous pieces of information simultaneously and continue to recall that information no matter how short the exposure was to the information. Repetition is not necessary in genius mind, similar to photographic memory, only the genius mind also has the capacity to place together the reference points of different parts of information. For example, geography and science would be able to be linked and the linking between the different components of information is what the genius mind then uses as its toolkit to create new thought from - creations, inventions, different architecture, different societies, different ways of being. All of that comes on the basis of the intelligence of the mind that holds these different pieces of information in place and can retain it.

When we reach the future intelligence, this type of mind is the norm. That means that schooling systems are completely different because currently schooling requires infinite amounts of repetition for it to go into the storehouse in the human brain. And then it needs to be reintegrated or accessed again to bring it out of the storehouse for the entity to remember what it is that they learnt. In future intelligence that storehouse is spread through the entire brain and not held in one location, so at any one moment you can access all the intelligence of what you have learnt. Therefore, schooling becomes the display of information which is instantaneously recorded, remembered, learnt and understood. Then the way that the information is built up by the entity, becomes the education. Meaning that the information is the baseline and that is effortlessly attained. What is built on top of that - which is the structuring and putting together, the linking, and the linking becomes unique to the individual depending on how they see all the pieces fitting together - that then becomes your intelligence of how new things come about: inventions and ideas that are currently nowhere to be seen because of the lack of a capacity to retain infinitely different parts of information in the same entity at once.

When this future intelligence is in place, of course that means that more information can reach the earth plane and have space to be recorded into the brains of the entities that are here. So, you can learn things much quicker and therefore more things can come to you to learn. The speed with which the information reaches you will be up to the individual as to whether they elect to specialise in that area and then continue to build on that particular area. If for example the entity is a scientist, then it would build more and more access points to information with regards to science. If it chooses to specialise in sciences, then it would build further pathways and be able to access more intelligence from more entities with regards to science. It would then put this together in its network of understanding and all the information would be instantaneously accessed by itself. If the entity was more interested in creativity and arts, of course it would do the same thing in that field. Then you have others just as you do now, who determine they would like to have a broad range brush on all information, and it's only up to the individual as to how far they wish to take that. Not dissimilar to how it is in the current reality. The main difference is that the storehouse of memory is in a different way, as is the ability to continually access new information.

There is one other brilliant change that occurs in the future which really sets apart future intelligence from where it is now and that is the ability to hear more than what is being said. The way sound carries information is elongated, so that although words are spoken, as those words create information into the records of the brain, the elongation of sound means that as the words are spoken, more depth and more meaning is received by the brain than was previously heard. An example would be that the intonation of the voice holds information and the higher the pitch of the voice, the more information that is received. Not dissimilar to being able to read the same sentence three times and learning something different from it every time you read it. That's the best example that you have in this time flow but what happens in future intelligence is all that information from that sentence is received simultaneously. Whilst you have a single string of information on one wave of thought, it is holding numerous bands of knowledge that is attaching meaning and embedding itself into the memory of the entity.

That means that the efficiencies with which things are learnt are extrapolated to be three, four, five-fold because you could read one formula and know that within that formula there are five different levels of understanding and meaning. Then you are taking that information and building on it and making new creations based on those five layers. What your creations then become are more in alignment with a total understanding of life forms and realities simultaneously, than just a singular and linear lifetime and physical mode of reality.

This is an introduction to how future intelligence is certainly capable of learning a lot quicker and a lot more than what you have right now. The other thing to be cognisant of is that this is yourselves in the future, so your ability to take in this information and to start to operate with a brain that has these capacities is not impossible from where you are. In fact, it is highly probable that if you elected to start to record memory into a greater storehouse within the brain rather than where it currently goes, you will be able to bring forth more intelligence than you ever have before. This will be an overriding of current systems that are in place in the brain. You can work with this in the simple visual analogies as described. Currently memory goes into a storehouse, and now you are choosing to operate with the entire brain recording all memory, and that all knowledge is accessible at any point and that you never forget anything.

That is future intelligence in a nutshell. There is no reason for you to forget anything - ever. A point to remember is that specialisation does still exist in future intelligence so the assumption that all entities know everything is a false assumption. Specialisation into fields of knowledge is apparent in future intelligence in order to create greater depth in those areas rather than the term, - you know all trades, but master of none. This is why you can meet extraordinary beings in this time and know that they don't necessarily know everything. It's because they are specialists in their field, as vast as that field may be.

The other important point on moving yourself into the recognition of future intelligence within your own capacity, is that you can also borrow through the greater mind, the mind of other entities. What that means is if you have gaps in your intelligence in that future mind, you would merely work with a nonlocal reality where you're communicating into the greater mind and picking up the consciousness of the entities where you have the gaps. You would then bring that through into your mind so that you have at any point this filling in of where it is you need that information to come from. This is a simple tool that is taught from birth onwards, for children to know how it is that what they don't know, someone else does and they are not limited to their own access of knowledge. This brings forth a great fluidity in intelligence and an openness in the exchange of that intelligence. The beauty in the system is that you, just as you are not interested in everything right here right now, you are not interested in everything. The freedom to be unique, even though you can borrow any mind, any thoughts that you choose, the freedom to be unique is still very much at play because you know that your intelligence is your own and it always will be. As you read this utilise these three simple points:

- Determine that every sentence you read you are receiving the entire bandwidth of information that is held in that sentence.
- Store information in the entirety of the brain so it can be accessed at any point.
- Reference the nonlocal mind to borrow the consciousness of any entity if you realise there are gaps that you are having trouble to fill as you read this.

Future Mind - Future Children

In the not too distant future, you will recognise that children are indeed God incarnate just as you are, and upon this recognition the energy that has been holding the human body as the revered state loosens so that each individual is allowed its full expression without being bound by the genetic ties or age-related paradigms. This means that future children are seen and known to be the divine spirit that of course they are, and that their wisdom at whatever point their physical body is holding is able to be reflected from the child in its completion. What we then see in this future is great minds, great beings in all bodies, not just those who have been through the journey of self-realisation to whatever age or antiquity that may be. We see that these future children are so embodied as the divine spirit that they shine forever and that that strength of knowingness that they come into the body with, is only a glimpse of what it is they become as they continue to move forward, even through the varying shifts in physical form that continue to be part of a growing human body.

You still see in the future the incubation, pregnancy, then birth, then age-related shifts as the child grows up. The difference in those age-related shifts is there are less chemically related hormonal shifts because the entity is retaining its divinity through all its age brackets. It's not dropping into frequencies where it has to repeat the experiences of the multitudes of humanity, or its parents, that have already been through those experiences, because it is coming in with its retained wisdom. This future child will in observation from this time flow to that time flow, move through puberty effortlessly. It will move through its early twenties effortlessly without the risks, without the drama, without the angst that is so prevalent through those aged periods because it is of the future. It is not coming into an incarnate body to have those experiences; it's coming to an incarnate body to have the experiences of a divine spirit housed in a physical form.

This shifts the entire reality, and herein is how an entire species evolves. We have been waiting for this for a long time. There was only so much seeding of a planet that could be done without losing the essence and the integrity of the human form. What we have been waiting for is for the human form to be able to house the great spirit and for the great spirit to shine through the human form. This future child, these future children, as they incarnate are what we have all been waiting to be part of, and this is how the seeding of the planet means that now it is Gods and man, gods and woman, together. The children are going to hold everything as those gods. Their bodies will be so adaptable to hold that that they don't have to press it through the issues that all the other gods prior had to press that body through to make it catch up, to make it part of who they are, to make the DNA sing. They don't have to do that.

As those entities are incubating, or in utero within the female, the female will be within receipt of that divine wisdom so what will happen is, even if the female is not as evolved as the entities coming through, she will suddenly take on into her form more of the frequency of that evolved state. As the child is born that God being is supporting the female to be in alignment with it and releasing - here it is as the key point - and releasing the genetic bind that holds the woman to the child. It is going to be released from the child, not from the woman. The woman has already had the genetic program running for so long that retains this necessity to create a survival species. She can't break that bond easily because that is what has been in place to keep the species going for as long as it needed to keep going. The future children in utero will integrate hormones back into the female body that shift the oxytocin levels so that she will nurture – breastfeeding - same as always, but those oxytocin levels that hold the binds together that create that, will be lessened. As the child breastfeeds the oxytocin will reduce rather than increase and the mother will then recognise the child as its own sovereign entity - because it is - and her “role as a mother”, will be nothing like it was before. She is now released from that bond and retains the sovereignty of herself as a divine spirit, so she becomes the vessel to carry the body through and to bring creation into the world, and the creation she knows she brings is a God into form.

As she brings that God into form, she illuminates herself as God in form ever more than she has before because the true meaning of creation becomes hers rather than creating a species that needs to replicate in order to have procreation and more numbers on a planet. She then elevates her status of understanding to be in alignment with the God that she is of course and always was. The male that was inseminating the female harmonises with that energy field that she is, and the child lives with Gods incarnate because of the energy that is coming in with the child, and its ability to shift the hormonal systems of the female during pregnancy and afterwards.

This is the magnificent change that occurs on this planet and how this future species of human beings is Gods incarnate and recognise as such from the children upward. As we go along with time, because of course there won't be every person on the planet having a child, what happens is, those that have had these experiences, they then do nothing other than create the change around them. Their micro reality is shifted because they are aware of the innate power of the being that they are, and they are not playing through the issues of the past that they have to make their way into a reality to form. They then are creating a greater micro reality, that then creates a greater macro reality and then all the other entities that were left on the earth plane to experience the shift are then impacted by these great beings that are going to incarnate and are already incarnating on to earth.

The woman, from the moment she conceives that child is aware of her sovereignty and that is a very important part to understand. She sees herself as a house of God and that house is holding herself as God and another God that will come and be on the earth. She knows of her innate sovereignty so that when the body - the baby - comes to life she is now free in her own right to move. It may be that that child has more than one parent and only one biological parent. It may be that the woman that birthed the child is so aware of the requirements of that singular self that she is, will then have the freedom and the sovereignty to move as her spirit determines it will move. Indeed, it may move beyond the earth plane after that period knowing that the entity that is birthed of her is always safe and protected, cared for, and loved as its divine spirit wills and drives it to be so. She will know that that love of God is inside of the body of the child and so much power exists in that, that she will never feel a separation or an anxiety or a loss if indeed her journey is to move separate from the child.

Gone are the paradigms of adoption, gone are the paradigms of single parenting issues, gone are the paradigms of loss because there is no parent to look after the child. All of that is completed because every one of those paradigms existed and continued to replicate itself because of the innate thought that there is a separation from God. Every one of those pictures from the child to the parent, through all adoptions, through all loss of parents, through all lack of attention - parent to child - every one of those paradigms was in place to push entities to overcome the sense of separation from God. That is all that was. They felt separate from God therefore they would play out every single scenario they possibly could to prove that they were separate from love, which is God.

This future child, these future minds - its complete because that separation no longer holds. Birth can occur and never again will anybody feel that loss of a loved one. The only way this will happen in the short term is if a woman has already had biological children and elects to have a child now - future now - she has to be on a high evolutionary scale in her own enlightened state of awareness and awakening. So, she recognises the totality of her spirit, then the entity that she will house will support that and it will become a sovereign being. She won't reactivate the patterns of the past genetics that dictate how a mother react with a child. It is a primal thing that has been programmed in and countless realities played it through in every culture. That is if she already has children.

If she doesn't already have children, the new entity coming through will be able to work innately with her body to release those hormones that turn on when a child is born. It will be the same outcome but an easier method because she won't have already activated the mother child tether. You may find more women having children at older ages based on this. You may also find entities having children who are relatively young based on this. And you will find that entities will have probably less children because they won't need to reproduce the species for so many people to die. The need to reproduce over and over and over because half of them will die, is no longer in place so it may be that the majority will have one maybe two children maximum. Nobody will feel any lesser because of that because they know that they are a God and they don't need to keep seeing trillions of them self to realise that.

This goes some way to explaining why when a woman reproduces a number of children with the same man, they are diluting the potential of a God coming in in its complete sovereignty and retaining that sovereignty. Each time what is being replicated is not the DNA of the father through the mother, but the line of attachment to mothering is being reinforced each time she births a child. She is actually creating more children on the planet for her to be tethered to. And because there are more children on the planet then, she retains the mothering instinct for longer and her escalation to where her divine spirit is driving her, holds her back for longer because she has more children to look after - in the current reality. That is why having more children with the same partner has this issue. If the woman changes partners, a similar thing occurs. But because of the diversity in the genetics, each child that comes in has a different potential reality that it is playing through those genetics, so she feels less attachment to the different versions of the children because she is not seeing the same genetic DNA replicated that is tethering her to those.

This is why you can find women that have children with numerous partners don't seem to love their children very much, or leave them to strangers, or can have separate marriages where the father looks after those children because she is having another baby. This is why she is not tethered as tightly to that genetic bond, whether the father is in play or not. Which really leads you to understand that less is more in the future. And the difference in the outcome is that, because single children in the current reality are so doted upon because the entities that birthed that child feel that this is the only replication of their DNA, they hold on so tight, and that spirit is strangled in most cases.

This future with less children is because all spirits are allowed to, and will, be sovereign and thriving. No longer do we hold on so tight to our offspring in that future. This is why you have maximum population growth at the moment. So many are feeling that there is going to be this reduction of population, but the feeling of the reduction of population is being driven from a state of ignorance and not from a state of awareness because there are still so many entities in separation. Imagine just having one child because you are complete in yourself. You're not having those children to complete yourself.

Future Mind - The Hallways of Thought

In the future we recognise that each of our journeys were like hallways of thought that we explored and collected memories and understandings, and we can open a door that brings us into one of those hallways, take our friends there and show them everything that we learnt along the way. The reason that we have these hallways of thought in our future is because we elected to know that all our recorded experiences that took us to the future, were always able to be backward observed. And for some of us in that future we elect to go into those hallways of thought, and they become not just a memory but an entire reality of experiences so we can walk again on an earth in a different time when it is nothing like it is where we are now.

As we walk on that earth in that different time, we recognise that the hallway was there to record for us our steps, and what everything was like. And when we go back down through that hallway, whichever time that may be, for some of us we may get caught up in it once again, because we bring back to that same era, wherever it is we chose to go, a greater wisdom than we had when we were there the first time. So, the rich life that we live, wherever it is in time we elect to go, means that we get to experience an earth through different eyes than we ever had recorded. Our future mind does this, not to change the destinies of those times, but for us to know that we really did miss a lot that first time. As we go back there, we get to take in ever more wisdom by the sheer nature of the possibility that we are present.

This is a simple exercise you can do in your current reality in one timeline. You can take your mind to any point presuming you have learnt a lot in one lifetime, and you can go back to any place in your life - when you were a child around your parents, when you were on a family holiday, a teenager, a young adult. You can go back there now just as if it is a hallway of thought and bring with you the wisdom of who you are right now. You integrate into the exact body that you were then. So, you become that child, that teen, or that 20-year-old, and what you bring to yourself in those moments is the presence and the wisdom of who you are now. You will see a rich life that was always with you, only you didn't have the eyes to see it. If you were on a family holiday and your memory is patchy, you can take that one patchy place, integrate your consciousness that you hold now into that, and take on the observation of the greater reality that is occurring while you are there.

Are there colours you didn't see? Are there sounds in the air that you missed at that time? The art of being present - whatever point in your life that may be, brings such joy to those moments that what you will be mapping backwards in time, just as we do in the hallways of thought from our future minds, are not changes to that reality, they are not affecting the timelines. We are becoming present in what was there all along that our observer was unable to see because it was running through such a limited thought structure. Our great minds in the future are doing this - going back in time to pick up what we missed. We are now realising how truly glorious life on earth always was through the eyes of the great observer and it was only our brain with its limited capacity that struggled to comprehend how beautiful everything was. Because it was so busy keeping up with our limited thoughts, it couldn't do anything other than project through our minds, through our senses, what those thoughts were doing so it would give us a narrow snapshot of a very large reality.

This is what some of us are doing in future mind because we want to know what we missed when all that busy thinking was going on. We are now present in different eras with the joy of recognition that every lifetime, that every era, every moment was teeming with life even though we didn't know how to experience that when we lived through it those first times. This is a beautiful exercise that you can so easily integrate now just into this life and you are not changing your memories. This is what is so beautiful - you get to keep all your memories from this life. You are merely expanding them and making them ever richer because you can know so much more throughout your entire life, including your birth in those times when you were a babe with very little memory. You can go now and be that babe and look through the eyes of the divine that you are and observe what it is that you missed.

You will find more joy presented to you because you have taken away the filters that were in place to make your reality whatever you determined it needed to be that one lifetime. If you were born in trauma and you lived a life of trauma, and you now go back into yourself in those times with these open eyes and this open mind and the great observer at play, you will see things you never saw before because your memory was merely a product of what your created reality determined it should be. You have always been far greater than you thought so take you, divine you, the mind that you hold now, and visit yourself then and watch joy unfold.

Please send this to anyone you choose. All we ask is, you let them know of the website The Compendium of Thought so they have their own experiences there.