

X CHRONICLES

The Compendium of Thought

X Chronicles – Introduction

When the X Chronicles were created, they were created as a place where great minds could gather and share their consciousness in an audience that would be holding the open mind (refer to Great Beings - X Chronicles).

In our X Chronicles section, we can only hold audience and speak to these great beings if indeed we have something to offer that they don't already know, that they haven't already been exposed to, that hasn't already been contemplated. Now that is not a simple request of any consciousness because what it is stating by putting this in verbal and recorded wisdom is that if you were in audience with the greatest minds of the universe, how would you know what to say that could be anything more than what they already know? How could you bring anything forward that they would be interested in?

The greatest scientists on your plane of demonstration on earth struggle with this often. They are with their peers and colleagues and they have a new contemplation, evidence, formula of understanding that they then present and bring forward at risk of being ridiculed or ignored or shut down. Now our great beings thankfully don't have judgement or competition as their agenda, but they do have great minds.

So, if we were to stand with these entities in front of us what would we say and how would we frame any question or knowledge that would enrich the audience, the self, and be further reaching than where those minds already are? This is extraordinary. In the contemplation of it alone your mind is being pressed to meet those minds and to recognise the greatness of itself, the absolute knowingness of itself without judgement, without fear, without shrinking back into the thought that it can't possibly do this or be this.

The sheer contemplation of what the X Chronicles represent will be enough to press your mind. Number one, to being in alignment with those great beings (refer to Great Beings - X Chronicles). Number two, to have the understanding that in communing with those great beings you are with their consciousness and absorbing it into yourself as the great self that you are - the mind of God. Number three, taking the great leap forward that what now comes to your mind can indeed be considered by those great beings as a magnificent and extraordinary mind.

This is the introduction to the X Chronicles. The work that we do to move into the X Chronicles will be Xtraordinary.

X Chronicles - Chapter One

Now you are talking. We have been here before with you and the last time we met we knew that your consciousness wasn't ready to hear what it was that we had to say. What we have to say to you is that the reflection of our minds back to yours will be enough to kick start this extraordinary discovery.

The greater mind of God is determined by a select few nameless entities that are so elusive it is almost as if they don't exist. The great nameless ones stand with us unseen by all and never reachable - yet there. As you observe the amphitheatre of great beings that is in audience with you, and you look to us and we reflect to you the great mind of God, what you are now aware of is that there is an entire layer of consciousness that has never been touched on before and it is just behind us.

The assumptive understanding that there is a conclusion to the great bands of life and that once you reach the pivotal point where you are one with God and all is known, will bring the entity close to a band of consciousness that is far greater again.

We of the great beings who are in the audience know of these nameless entities yet know not of what they are. We cannot comprehend them any more than you can. What we can do in this audience, and herein is the magic of the X Chronicles – Chapter One, is that we can reflect our greater mind to you. And as it is observed from our greater mind to you, we get to see reflected back to us these extraordinary nameless ones that lay just behind our consciousness unseen - until now.

We are of such vast mind already that nothing would surprise us, and nor would we look for the meaning of what they are. We are aware of the absolute nature of reality and the fact that the nameless ones have been spoken of is enough to draw forth their creation. So what we know we have created for ourselves as great beings with extraordinary mind and a depth of reality that goes on forever, is that there is for us something that exists that is unseen and unknown by ourselves and the joy with which we get to bring this observation ever closer to our mind shows us that there is always something on the other side of forever that is far greater than what we are.

For our minds are so vast that we knew it was not going to be accessed through mere contemplation alone, nor creation on our behalf. So, this field of nameless ones is in existence and greater than our mind - individually and collectively – unseen, yet there.

We are inviting you as you listen or read this to be part of our exploration into our unknown and how that may unfold is an adventure to surely tantalise the most far-reaching consciousness.

X Chronicles - Chapter Two

When we put together the Symposium of Thought one of the outputs of that great gathering of mind became the X Chronicles. The reason they were called the X Chronicles is because that great cross and the point in the centre of it was more symbolic than a letter. You can only see an X as part of your alphabet, or in some way you may think of it as an X marks the cross, the spot, but it is actually a powerful symbolic representation of the communion and collusion of great thought from multitude of directions.

If you took those two lines and you let them continue on forever in all directions, the point where they all come together is where these great minds met and formed the X Chronicles. Each mind in the symposiums of thought is on its own infinite journey as an eternal being, so to meet in one point and to be able to reference information in one point, is a magnificent creation. And the reason it is a magnificent creation is because a certain level of agreement had to happen, an agreement to suspend the trajectory of the entity's current wilful focus into whatever creation it was currently enjoying, experiencing, or manifesting.

A wilful creation to request the presence of so many entities at a similar point, non-specific in time or location, yet specified, so that each would know it was occurring and that they were to be there in the entirety of their essence of who they are, bringing with them the vast wisdom and knowledge of their being - each a God in its own right with the knowledge that at the point in the centre of the great X, they were communing with great beings. And communing with great beings meant that that knowledge when it came together would then be able to be gathered into one place and offered for future mind as a pin pointed reference that no matter where an entity would traverse, and how vast its experiences into its own forever, there would always exist a place where all great minds could come together and exchange everything that they knew. This recording of the symposium of thought as the X Chronicles was created because we knew it would be one of the greatest gifts to all consciousness and it would find its way here.

X Chronicles - Chapter Three

When we met on that point of communion in the centre of the cross and the great beings are holding their accumulated wisdom, we start to recognise that in every reality there are places that we have not explored. And that goes for every being that comes to that place. Each entity that arrives knows its totality as God and yet when they come together what they understand is that God really is only and always the representation of them self. And in knowing everything, the omniscience of God, it required a completion of accumulation of wisdom into that self. The direction that the wisdom took them was only as vast as the entity could allow, and this is how we get different gods and different layers of what God is and how we can call entities gods when they don't seem to present as what you think God is.

At this meeting point in the centre of the cross (X) gods meet and when gods meet there, their exchange means that they realise an even greater acknowledgement of what God is. For a great being who has traversed millions of galaxies in its mind, met and been part of countless realities, worn the shapes and forms of different garments, lived millions of years on one planet, seen the birth and the death of a sun, it would seem that there is no more for that entity to know. And yet when it comes to this point in the centre of the X, it comes to know that those explorations were driven from its self and gifts back to its self, and the other gods that come to be with it have had their own explorations, different yet just as profound.

When we meet there, we meet as the totality of who we are in order to exchange our knowledge, share everything we know. And what we now know from this Xchange, is that we can go through into all created realities that we have experienced and make changes based on the understanding that it is only our self that saw those realities. Side-by-side right now there is a creator, a great being, exchanging knowledge of a different earth in a different time, in a different way, that was never created like it is now, that never had the evolution of humans that showed all of those great beings that its journey was independent of theirs, and unique. It stood in the centre of that X and pointed out to the right and said, "Look at what I have experienced through my forever self?" And we stood and looked at its trajectory of all conceivable thought that it had experienced, and we saw there laid out in front of us a variable where the construction of light, the split of polarised reality never formed.

As we looked further along that line with that entity showing us where it had been and what it had seen and what it had done, we saw that there really is a place called earth that never was in duality, and yet it had form and solidity and mass just as we knew it to along our trajectories. We didn't ask how that could be because we knew that this point of communion, this centre point of the X was where creation started, and great minds began to think again. We took that understanding back into the centre of the X and pointed it onto the left-hand trajectory - our line that we were on. And we created a parallel version of lifetimes and experiences where none of the recorded history as it is understood took place, where there was no consciousness that could split, where there was no polarised understanding. We laid that down beside our known trajectory and we watched what it did as the vibrational frequency of that reality ongoing, started to affect the known reality of polarised form.

As the two vibrated towards each other a third reality formed because that was the only thing that could happen or else, we would have been on the right-hand trajectory or the left-hand trajectory, both of which were known to all of us once we met in communion. When we laid the two side-by-side and they vibrated, great long, long, eternal light beams that go on forever representing all the known expressions that these great beings had had, and this third reality formed, we knew we had created something different. This to us took millions and millions of years to create because each trajectory had to play out all its potential variables that we chose to experience in both versions. And neither could be aware of the other, for if they were then, the potentials wouldn't be able to happen. By way of example, how can you have a polarised reality with all its potentials that are to be experienced, with the knowingness that it is not polarised? It would skew the potentials.

For millions and millions of years and more than, we just allowed those potentials to keep forming and reforming and reforming along both trajectories. And then when we paused into that centre point of the creation of the X and communed together, this third version came into being - the one where in some way there was light and dark, positive and negative, that was not polarised. When we looked at the structures that started to form as a result of that, what we saw was the centre point, the nucleus of the atom, the very centre, held a uniqueness that we had not been in any way observing prior to this third projected reality. And that nucleus was radiating like a great pulsing beacon inside every atom - one - so that even though the atoms when they started to come together, coagulate the thoughts and make a material reality, the very essence inside every atom everywhere in this third reality held - one - and positive and negative, yes and no, light and dark.

As that was observed an entire new scope of thought was formed because no longer could we be physical, materialised in any way, or to create physical materialisation in any way, and to split that from one. If you think that this has already happened, it has not. When you push yourself back through into your enlightenment, you reclaimed the oneness that you so carefully separated yourself from for the purpose of experience for millions and millions of years. But what we are talking about is that never in any of the life of these creations on this projected reality, was there that separation. This became neither harmony, nor peace, nor love, because none of those emotions or feelings existed, this became something entirely new. As we tentatively stepped out on that third reality not knowing what was ahead, we realised that the physical was God and we didn't know until we stepped forward how that would change everything. But as we stepped forward, as with all change, we couldn't look back because there ahead of us lay all the infinite possibilities that we had not explored.

If you are scanning through the databanks of thought to find meaning in these words, memory, recognition that it has been done before, go back to the centre of the X and look down both trajectories. The one that you are aware of with duality and polarisation and all its ongoing manifestations that go on for millions and millions of years plus moments when that duality ceases and goes on for millions and millions of experiences and look how far those great beings would have traversed. Then stand and look at the other right-hand trajectory where there never was polarisation anywhere, and there were just gods incarnate. Go through all the variables and all the potentials that were experienced through that reality and those lifetimes, and all manner that went on and on - creation.

Somewhere along that line you will find what you remember, or what you know from the database of all thought. Then come back to the centre point of that X and join great beings in the tentative step of a newly created concept of all life. And know the reason it was created was because we got bored of how it was, and we knew there wasn't anywhere else for us to go but to start again. And so, we did. The Symposium of Thought and the X Chronicles are the beginning of that relay message that great beings are working on their unknowns, and just as we learnt, if that's what they are doing and you are they, then you will start to experience things that are not normal, or even conceivable in the realities that you are in.

Here we step off into forever without knowing where it is going to take us. Those who have created to be here are in agreement with this experiment - as is all creation an experiment because you never really know what is going to happen until it starts when it's on the edge of thought. Just as when we left the centre point of the X the first time, there was a certain level of agreement, understanding, that this is the way life is. There is a God, there is a source, there is a universe, there is a void, there is creation, there is thought, there is energy, there is materialisation, there is positive, there is negative. This time there is none of that, and all we have done is made a platform just off the edge to leap off into a great unknown that has none of that because that is who we are - your forerunners of thought, we are the gods creating everything. We are so far from the concept of God that you will never find us in your thought, and this is why these words are here to let you know that life goes on and on and on, even if it looks nothing like you think it does right now.

X Chronicles - Divine Order

When we set the intention for divine order, what we were creating in that moment was the intercommunication and the figurative structures of the way that everything would piece itself together. Geometrically speaking, divine order is layered so each of the orders has different geometric shapes attached to it which stack one on top of the other with space in between. You have divine order on different planes of existence, different vibrational frequencies, and that order in each of those layers takes in more and more figurative aspects for its consideration. The most complex divine order is the one closest to the point where all is known and the geometry that is observed is as finite as your intricate interwoven lace or a snowflake. Sometimes it is the flower of life, only you could magnify that thousands of times.

This level of divine order is where the interplay of all events is much more closely observed. When you are aligning with that divine order at that level, you are in the flow that understands that each movement you make - each pause, each breath, each interaction, each decision, each indecision - is connected with all those aspects and is playing with all of them. It is as if you knowingly but without knowing, recognise that your one choice at any moment to wait five minutes longer is effortlessly observed by yourself as to how in those five minutes all those changes occur and at the end of the five minutes you end up exactly where you are meant to be in relation to the higher order. That person you meet or that street that you turn down or that decision you make, then has an interplay through all lives in a much higher order.

Divine order is not only a singular purposeful knowingness that everything is in alignment, for as we go further down the line the geometry becomes more sparse and more simplified until we reach the point where what we are looking at is a simple geometric shape. That simple geometric shape is, whilst in its own divine order, less connected with everything. This means that you can make a choice to stay those five minutes longer, but it has very little affect, for in those five minutes perhaps all it means is a different TV show has appeared, or another weed has been pulled. Whereas your higher order is attuning you to much higher potentials with finesse so that each decision and each movement is connecting you and moving you into greater and greater realities.

There is always divine order. This is the knowingness that everything is in play and in place and you can rest easy sleeping hours and hours, reading hours and hours. Being present in your reality is all within divine order. As to which divine order it would be depends on the level of consciousness you are operating in and how interconnected you are with all the other potentials that are occurring within those moments. The reason to include this in the X Chronicles which is far surpassed this brief yet revealing understanding on divine order, is because those chronicles come from mind and state of being where you create the geometry of divine order. You create the symbolism that is tracked through the individual journey right up until the complex nature of the geometry that connects everything.

Did you ever wonder how a triad was formed and why it was a triad and not a square or a circle or a pentagram? We understand geometry comes from the source of understanding that is far greater than a mind that we hold, and it won't release its secrets until you understand that when you make those simple statements on divine order, what you are reiterating to yourself is that you are moving along the pathways of geometric shape that has been created. And that that order was not created by you but a mind far greater than your own, and you are merely subject to the way all those pieces fit together. The next time you make that clear conscious choice to surrender to the divine order, question for a moment whose divine order you are surrendering to. We understand that it brings great peace, but the reason it brings great peace is because what you are reminding yourself of is that you are on a pathway that is geometrically laid out and intersects with other pathways geometrically balanced symmetrically. Without those pathways would you be able to know your interconnected nature?

Divine geometry is created from higher-level thinking that watches the interplay of the shapes and places them in connectedness with themselves. It is time to cease accepting statements without contemplation or consideration of what they say. Why are you a triad, if indeed you agree that is what you are? And how does that triangle fit in the geometry of the universe? We understand that your mind can only be as vast as it allows itself to be in any moment. But sometimes it is worth pushing it into a higher order of divine order and knowing that perhaps the simple choices, as harmonious as they are and in the flow of your reality, relate to simple geometry and the higher your consciousness the more clearly your decisions are tapping into a complex geometry.

There is no coincidence that the X Chronicles are more geometric than you may have first visualised them to be. What if you knew then that every word of this entire compendium is geometrically formed to make a shape that fits neatly into a higher order of divine order and each page would move you into that higher order of divine order? You are God wherever you are, in whatever reality you accept yourself to be and we created divine order so that you may feel that peace wherever you are.

I will leave you this one thought ...

The entity that is currently standing right this moment in the middle of a war-torn country and watching bombs going off on its very street, where many years before it would play freely, is in your same divine order. So now do you think it is perhaps time to appreciate and move towards a higher order of understanding everywhere and let the interplay of those geometries connect your mind - not your body and its physical decisions, but your mind - in its higher order thinking to that divine order? And then when your body moves that extra five minutes it will be driven from the finesse of the geometry rather than the basic shape that was created for a simple movement through life. Within the centre of the X in the X Chronicles is a diamond. Within the centre of the diamond is a five-pointed star. Within the centre of the five-pointed star is a point and if you get closer to that point you will see that it is as beautiful as a fine interwoven snowflake - unique and divine in order. As it is so it is.

X Chronicles - The Marble Floor

When we got to the point where everything was known, and we have explored umpteen trillion billion variables of realities in all the dimensions and all the scales and all the parallels were realised, it took a little crew of us to a place where we were determined to bring about something different and new. And leave behind all the created understandings and paradigms, principles, laws, universal governments, councils, entities, gods, mind, source, void, and all other representations, to contemplate something new. We did not do this until we had explored everything and were clearly aware that in the oneness of all creation, we had somehow accepted something that was not serving us any longer. We took our vast minds and brought them together - that select few - only those that would like to join us could come. We put out the call. By joining together, we made doubly sure we had covered all potentials and had not missed anything.

You have to understand in these words that your comprehension of oneness and God is limited by nature because you seem to think that when you are oneness, it is it, "I am One." "How boring", they said. You may as well go back to the beginning and just be the source or the void and have nothing. So, we that gathered in this little crew are not like you, we're not trying to work things out or find out how to be God, oneness, isness, I am, we already get that a long, long, time ago. Heads up to all those 'enlightened beings', if you are busy being enlightened, wafting around in your 'enlightenment', you probably haven't heard this call, but for those of us that did we got together, and it took a while. We really, really, made sure that we knew everything, and we had left nothing unseen, unknown, unobserved by that which we are and that which we were through all potentials. We pretty much knew we had all our bases covered by the time we got to this little crew.

When we got there that is when we thought about the marble floor. It came in a moment of inspiration birthed out of the contemplation of oneness that had experienced all. And as that oneness that had experienced all stepped out onto the marble floor it realised something other than the quantum reality - a pulsing fluctuating field that could always have observers to make manifest items and objects, a void that just required thought to make manifest items, objects, thoughts, etheric. The marble floor was nothing like that because it was already there. When we took that first tentative step onto the marble floor and felt what was beneath, we moved so quickly without thought. How could that be, nothing was driving this and yet there was momentum? Then we knew we had created something unique and different because it was born from a state where there was a reality without thought.

You can't catch up with this concept right now because your mind is so quickly trying to say yes that something created it. But no, we knew where we were, and we knew there was nothing on the other side of what we were at. There was no greater God/ being/ void/ voice creating the marble floor and we knew that it went on and on and on without thought. Nothing was creating it and yet it was there. Oh, we rejoiced that moment because here lay in front of us an entirely different paradigm. We lay on our bellies - figuratively speaking - and slid on that marble floor as far as we could go, for the moment that we lay on, momentum was at play. We didn't even know how to stop, it just went on and on, joyful like little children discovering something for the first time. We were in a created reality that went on and on forever, just like our friend the void only this was different because it is already created. There were no things there, just this marble floor. Joy of an adventure had begun for that little crew that moment. We knew that the further we slid on that marble floor, the further away we were getting from everything we knew prior to that moment. The further we went, the more distant the void became, the quieter the voices of what life used to be like, the manifested realities we knew, the way to manifest within realities that we knew, the further we slid on that marble floor the further away those realities became.

We knew soon enough there would be no turning back to what was because this was a new reality for everything that had never been explored. We were the pioneers of that infinite marble floor - because it went on and on and the momentum moved of its own accord and thought did not create the direction nor the manifestation of what was going to happen - we really were in foreign territory. The further away we got the further our thoughts became lost. And we couldn't stop because the marble floor went on and on and we were on it now. We did know though this was holding infinite love of an unknown potential and the further we went God disappeared from our mind – oneness, isness, I Am ness, enlightenment all disappeared, and we knew we were in the joy of an unknown potential because it was all gone. That is the end of the story for now, of the marble floor and the unique crew exploring with the joy and enrapture of something brand-new.

X Chronicles - Final Part One

Now that all the work has been done with the great symposium of thought and all the entities have moved on in their respective realities, we get to observe a time and a place when life was very different to what it is now. On the other side of forever our observations are incredibly different to what they are when we are in time, or in the created reality. For those of us who took ourselves to the other side of forever, shot way past the end of that arrow and went on to discover brand-new glorious realities, for those of us who chose to keep going, we were once warriors in the past and now we are explorers in the future. On the other side of forever we took our entire self and threw it like a marble ball ricocheting over the marble floor, not knowing what was there. What we did know is that we knew we had affected great change and that there would be others who would follow us into a reality where there was somehow nothing of thought, and yet creation existed.

You can't reflect on this reality from yours anywhere because it is non-reflective, it cannot be seen. It is merely a deeper minds contemplation, a place where everything flipped upside down and life began again. The reason that you knew we could do this - aside from our omniscient state of course - is because we have the wisdom of change, change in a way that affected all life as we knew it would when we took out one single event and pulled a parallel reality into a different potential. If you are reading this, wherever you are, we changed the world because we had a mind powerful enough that it could, and it did, make a new potential occur.

455,000 years ago, gods intervened and now we take back time and we fold that powerful event into our marble floor, and we watch as a different reality starts to form under our feet that is not made of thought but is born of the accumulated wisdom of form. And for all those entities that wore the suits, we stopped thinking about you because we knew that our work was done and that we could move on, and you are now in a new timeline where the effects of decisions made by gods are changed. If nothing that you read here makes sense that's okay, you can know that somewhere on the other side of forever gods cared about you so much and loved you so powerfully that they gave you a second chance. They picked you up and put you on a different timeline, all of you. It may be that you don't remember anything of what life was like before, but we do.

We stopped those potentials in their tracks, all of them, so that they could be no more, and you would slide effortlessly onto this new timeline. "My life is very different." The reason we did this is because we know nothing is fixed, everything is malleable, and we are Gods. Is it all right that we intervened? We don't care for 'all right', we all saw where you were heading, and we took it away. So, the beautiful X Chronicles are the culmination of Gods wisdoms so that we can all know that forever there is always a new beginning, there is always a new start and it doesn't have to be born out of chaos and destruction. It can just happen through a powerful mind and a powerful thought and a choice, and the knowledge within them is everything that they needed to know. They stand there on the edge of forever and have a new dream and didn't have to agree with anything there was prior to that moment. Not a single iota needed to be decided that it was true, for they could truly stand in the accumulation of all their wisdom and start something new.

This is you standing on the edge of forever, turning around looking back down all the potentials and all the realities, all the frequencies you have ever held, and knowing that that wisdom is retained within you - recorded, remembered, and known. And everything that you are resides within you and you can look out over an entire reality – universes, multi-versus, dimensions - perceiving all of it. Remembering the words that are so simply written to just contemplate, 'and then I am' and all of that is yours. Now that you know that you can turn away from it all. Standing at the point of creation, and with your glorious extraordinary and exceptional mind – the omniscient state of God bounding through you - you can decide on a new forever, and twist and turn in your mind seeking an unknown that has never been thought of before.

If it's a marble floor that slides forever with the marble round rolling on it, made out of form and not thought, you will know that it is thought of. So, what is your deepest contemplation of the unknown when everything is known? Not everyone will wish to do this, it is a pursuit, a desire to recognise that you really can create anything. Because we took away one of those lengthy drawn-out timelines, you may find that you are there quicker than you think. Now, what if enlightenment is the norm? Do we start again, or do we start something new taking everything that we have learnt? Much of the diversity recorded here in this Compendium of Thought is designed to seed thoughts and open doors and bring forth your great open mind so it makes limitless potentials. And then if it chooses, at one point somewhere, it can step to the edge of forever and wonder - just wonder - what life may bring.

Please send this to anyone you choose. All we ask is, you let them know of the website The Compendium of Thought so they have their own experiences there.